SUING HER YOUNG HUSBAND.

A WOMAN WHO IN HER SEVENTIES

MARRIED A MAN OF GG. He Says She Gave IIIm $25,000, and She Says He Seized It-His Alleged Attentions to a Very Young Woman-Flat Contradi tions. The suit of Mary Ann Beaumont Campbell, aged 77, against her husband, Walter Campbell, aged 66, which came up before Judge

Donohue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday morning, presented an odd case of domestic intelicity. The parties were married three years ago, separated last April, and Mrs. Campbell now sues to recover the proceeds of 200 shares of Rock Island and Pacific Railroad stock, valued at $55,000, which she alleges her husband stole out of her tin box in the vaults of the Safe Deposit Company.

The case, as presented to Judge Donohus yesterday by Charles Matthews for Mrs. Campbell, and Hatch & Van Allen for Mr. Campbell, was marked by flat contradictions. Mrs. Campbell says that she was deceived by her husband about his income when he married her; that instead of receiving $5,000 per year he was only getting $400 a year, and that he is a bad man and an adventurer. He says that before their marriage she agreed, as a condition of their union and to balance their unequal ages, to settle on him $25,000 in money and other property. He proposed to give up his business and devote himself to her, and averaged his sacrifice at $25,000.

Mrs. Campbell denies the ants-nuptial agreement. Her story about the $25,000 is that in May, 1879, she proposed to go to Europe, and her husband was unwilling unless she would make some provision for him in case of her death. She consented to do so, went to the Safe Deposit Company took out of a tim box in her compartment the 200 shares of the stock in question, and went to a lawer with her husband for the purpose of arranging the transfer of the stock, so that in case of her death he might have the income of the bonds during his life. But she kept the stock as hers, put it back in her tin b-3, and took the key with her to Europe, expecting to find the bonds there when she came back. She says that when they went away from the Safe Deposit Company her husband said to her." Now, Mary, I am very much obliged, because the interest of that will be sufficient for my old age in case I outlive you."

Mrs. Campbell's view of the transfer is sustained by Lawyer Clark, who drew the papers. Mr. Campbell weaver, says that the stock was an absolute gift to him, and produces a witness, a woman, who swars that eshe heard Mrs. Campbell say she had given the stock to her husband. Mr. Campbell makes an afflavit detailing the incidents which he swears occurred when his wile gave him the stock would be taken by her husband—who had returned, leaving her there under the oretext that he had been subpanned as a witness—she telegraphed to the Bafe Deposit Company and caused a seal to be put upon her compartment. When she came back ahe found the seal there, but, on opening that his box discovered that Mr. Campbell had taken away the stock.

Mr. Campbell says his wife is worth from $125,000 to $150,000 in money and other property in her own right, and that this money, the proceeds of the stock is all the property he has to support him that, his wife is worth from $125,000 to $150,000 in money and other property in her own right, and that this money, the property had sold the s quets, which he kept, although if his wife brought him flowers he put them out of the room. McEwen also swears that he has frequently seen Mrs. McDonald kiss Mr. Campbell and receive his kisses, and that when she left the house afterward he threw kisses to her from the window. He always treated Mrs. McDonald a grea, deal better than he did his wife. At Keyport he sent letters and telegrams to her. asking why she did not come down to see him, and what was the matter. McEwen also swears that while Mr. and Mrs. Campbell were stopping at the St. Denis Hotel, Campbell were were, McEwen further swears that Campbell had two English sovereigns of which he gave one to Mrs. McDonald is a very pretty woman, about 40 years old, "and dresses very stylish." Sometimes her carriage stood in front of Mr. Vining's house two hours at a time, while she was in his room with Mr. Campbell. He looked through a crack in the door and saw her move close up to his chair and lean upon his breast. "They called each other darlings," adds McEwen.

As to her alleged theft of the ring Mrs. Campbell offers proof that her husband gave it to her. The only money she ever got from her husband, she says, was $200 in gold. She offers affidavits of friends who never saw Mr. Campbell with any such scarf pin as he describes. The clock and shawl which Mr. Campbell says his wife was detected in removing, she says were her own, the shawl having been given to her by her former husband, J. P. Beaumont, the artist.

Mr. Campbell in turn produced letters from his wife to show her affections for him after the alleged steeling of the stock. In these letters she addresses him as "My dear husband" and "My darling husband." Mrs. Campbell repoins that she did not know at that time that he had her stock in his pooket. He left her in Europe in September, and she did not know her bonds Rather than be persecuted as I have been I would remain in this country during the remainder of my stay on sarth, and sway from those of my own blood whom I love most dearly and founly. I have read with great care all you say in your isliers and all Mr. Clark says. But, how do I know? What assurance have I got hist your son will not harass me the moment I arrive in New York? What security have I set that I won't be hollowed and persecuted any more? If you wish to write me and promise me that so far as you can prevent it you would let use alone, and that you will not in the future cause any one directly or indirectly to say out my acts in any way, and that you will entirely let alone the gi-betweens and mine also, if you will send to me a strong paper releasing or discharging me from all claims or demands whatever on account of that stock, and that you will not feel assured that I am not to be frostback, then, and in that case I will trust you and return at once and do my part toward trying once more to see if we cannot live together as we outh!

The precise question that will first be determined by Judge Donohue is whether or not the attachment which Mrs. Campbell has procured against the property which she says is here, and which it is reimitted is the proceeds of the stock she transferred to her husband, shall be vacated, and the property restored to the custody of Mr. Campbell. Judge Donohue reserved his decision.

A WEST STREET WAREHOUSE AFIRE. tored Rage Blazing-Chief Rhodes's Pall-

Engines Pumping Molasses and Water. Policeman McDermott discovered a fire in W. C. Tilghman's storage warehouse, 13 and 14 West street, yesterday morning at 5 o'clock. At the same moment a private watchman saw the flames in the rear of the building, which runs through to 20 Washington street, and a double alarm was given. When the first engine arrived, a second and third alarm were sounded, and with the additional engines came Capt. Webb of the Church street station and forty-one policemen. The building was stored with rice. gunny bagging, hops, whiskey, paper, rags, old ron, and other articles, and in the cellars were The building is five stories high and the intense heat many hours to melt the shutters. The building were the first appeared in the building were: H. K. & F. B. Thurber & Co., 1,000 bags of rice; Cabot, Bowies & Co., 4,000 bales of gunny bagging; Pancoast & Tarr, iron pipes; and Geo. Watson, Jr., paper stock. The building belongs to the Stephen Whitney estate. The flames first appeared in the third story, where they had burned the iron shutters through and noured from the windows. The police believe the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion in the rags on the third floor, and that it began to burn on Sunday, as it must have taken many hours to melt the shutters. The building is five stories high and the intense heat made the side walls crack ominously. The tenants of the buildings on either side removed their household goods into the street. Chief William W. Rhodes, who, in Chiet Rowe's absence, is acting as Chief of the First Battalion, was the first fireman to reach the second story, leading a line of hose inside of the building. The smoke was dense and he walked carefully, but a hatchway without guard rails had been earelessly left open, and be fell through to the floor below, landing flat on his back. His men ran in and carried him out, and an ambulance took him to the Chambers Street Hospital. Dr. McCosh said in the afternoon that the chief's injuries were ascrious but not dangerous contusion of the back and some severe bruises. He was taken home in the evening, but it is not likely that he will be able to resume his duties for a month. He had a similar fall a year ago.

The molasses and water had mixed, and the result was cellars full of a chocolate-colored mixture that perfumed the air for a block around. It is said that $50,000 will cover the loss by the fire. 700 barrels of molasses belonging to B. H. Howell, Son & Co. of 109 Wall street. Other Property that is Pretty Certain to Stay in Receiver Hopkins of the Manhattan Railway Company said yesterday that the work of taking an inventory preparatory to the forthcoming report of the receivers had been found to be an enormous undertaking. There had been no data upon which to work, and they had to go back to the beginning of the company as a corporation. The inventory, he said, would be ready about Saturday, and the report of the receivers would follow in two or three days thereafter. The future of the receivership, he said, depended upon the present suit of the New York Elevated to recover its road. If that were successful, the Metropolitan would follow suit, "and then," he added, "the receiver will have no property in charge except some blanks, a few old desks, and two water coolers."

One of the attorners of the Mannattan Company said yesterday that the present indications were that the New York Elevated would get its roads back by an order of the Court. After both roads shall have been withdrawn from the Manhattan Company a new arrangement for pooling the earnings, he said, will probably be made. to go back to the beginning of the company as a

MOURNING FOR A DOG.

The Story of Gunney, the Water Spaniel, the There has been source for two days among the little ones' grief. On Saturday a dog named Gunne while driving cattle, was gored by a bull and fatally hirr Many years ago some fishermen discovered on th Many years ago some fishermen discovered on the beach one morning a large water spaniel with a dead child tied upon his back. The dow had undoubtedly swam ashors from a wreck. He was given the name of Gunner, and soon became a great favorite among the fishermen in the neighboring village of Galliee. When sammer cottages were erected along that part of the New Jersey beach Gunner visited them frequently, and became a welcome visitor. He seemed to have no particular home, but went from one kitchen door to another for his food. He recomised no one owner, but his friend-liness confessed allegiance to every cottager or fisherman at Normouth Heach.

He was the constant companion of children, and evidently regarded himself as their special guardian. He rambled on the beach with them, and accompanied them in their more distant walks. It was his deight to jump into the surf and awim around the bathers, or dash after blocks of wood thrown out into the waves. He saved several lives. Gunner had many of the noble traits of the St. Bernard dogs, which he resembled in appearance.

He says that a young man near him in the throng, not in the uniform of one of the employees of the boat, uttered the cries. There was straightaway a commonton to the throng, and he missed his watch. He caused the arrest of the vociferous young man, who said he was James R. Waldron. In the General Sessions, yesterday Waldron was put on trial. Mr. Bail thentified him positively. The only evidence for the defence was that of a checkmaker who had employed Waldron under the name of Joseph Baker two years ago, and had been astisted with him. Lawver Steckler dwelt upon the dangers of hasty identifications, and the jury acquitted Waldron." Probably, Waldron," Recorder Smyth said, "if the jury had known that your photograph is in the Rogues' Gallery, and that you have served several terms in State prison, the result would have need different."

"Gentlemen, I hope you don't think that it was my duty to inform you." Lawyer Steckler said to the jury smiling. Some of the jurors smiled, but others seemed somewhat discomfited. pockstbooks!" He says that a young man near him i

PRICKED BY A BAUNSCHEIDTISMUS A Saloon Keeper's Beath Through Alleg-

Majoractice by a Cigarmaker. County Physician Converse of Jersey City made a post-mortem examination in the case of John Gulacky, the Hoboken saloon keeper, who died at his home, 452 Willow street, on Sunday and found death had resulted from malpractice. Guiscky had been suffering a long time from some internal disease, and on Wednesday Henry Braham, a West Hoboken cigarmaker. on being informed by Guiscky of his ailment, said that he could cure him with the aid of an instrument which he produced, and which he called a baunecheidtismus. This instrument consists of a cylinder, in which there are twenty-five sharp-pointed needles. Guiseky consented to an operation, and the cigarmaker went to work. He first stripped the patient, and then pricked the fleshy part of his legs with the needles until the brood began to flow. Then he applied croton oil to the wound, and gave it as his opinion that the patient would enjoy the best of health in a few days.

After this operation Guiseky grow very weak and began to sink rapidly. On Friday last his family, becoming alarmed, called in Dr. Nast. The physician's efforts to save Guiseky's life wers unavailing, and on Sunday morning he died in great agony. The Doctor refused to give a certificate of death, and informed the County Physician, who made an investigation. The case has been turned over to Coroner Wiggins, and he will hold an inquest on Wednesday evening. Braham could not be found vesterday. County Physician Converse said yesterday that the baunscheidtismus is very seldom used by physicians, and that in the hands of an inexperienced person it would be a dangerous tool.

Braham has resided in West Hoboken for a called a baunscheidtismus. This instrument hands of an inexperienced person it would be dangerous tool.

Braham has resided in West Hoboken for number of years. It is said that he was a frience of Benjamin Genet, the negro voudoo docto who operated in Union Hill about four year ago, and that he was led by him into believing that he could cure all kinds of diseases. Gene was compelled to leave the State for having been concerned in a similar case of mainractice.
